Spring Calendar

The Spring Equinox, when the Sun enters Aries, is March 20th at 2:01AM here in Santa Fe. The Spring Equinox Chart is considered to be the template for the coming year according to Mundane Astrology. This is an ancient predictive system of astrology used for countries and their rulers since its beginning in Mesopotamia times. It was codified in the 16th century when information about it was first written down.

In the Mundane Astrology system the houses and the planets have meanings specifically suited to government and all affairs of a country. For instance, the first house (which we shall see has a great deal of activity in it), refers to the common people, the voters, public health, general conditions of the country and the state of affairs generally. On this Spring Equinox there are currently 5 planets and the North Node in the first house. Saturn, the North Node, and Neptune are all in Pisces and there are a lot of current issues related to them: homelessness and poverty, disparity in wealth, issues of the past needing new solutions, and public health. Saturn here rarely produces much good being in the watery sign of Pisces where deception and ambiguity dissolve good intentions. The North Node points to the need to access new information to resolve past issues and Neptune in its own sign is ambiguous: two fish traveling in opposite directions. Which “fish” is stronger? Neptune will finally move out of Pisces into Aries for a while on the last day of March but returns to Pisces later in the year. Other Pisces issues are aid for veterans, “for profit” health care, and immigrants.

Three other planets in the first house are the Sun, and Venus and Mercury which are retrograde. The Sun is well aspected indicating good luck for the president, but since Mercury is retrograde it shows “discontent, personal attacks, libel actions, and recrimination in the press” and Venus retrograde indicates vice, problems in the Arts and trouble for women rights.

An Astrological Flower

We are seeing all of this right now.

The second house rules the stock market, the banks and money in general. Chiron is here in the U.S. chart, but the ancients did not know about Chiron! If we were to use it we would recall that Chiron is the rainbow bridge, the wounded healer. How does that relate to money? Perhaps there could be a rebalancing of finances such that an increase of the middle class occurs, or fiscal policies could be socially benevolent. But right now that seems to be wishful thinking!!

The third house in Mundane represents anything to do with communication: travel of any kind, the Post Office, libraries, early schooling, etc. Uranus is in this house and as I have written before, Uranus is AI (developed in the U.S. at Dartmouth College!), any kind of electronics, the unforeseen, unexpected, and unorthodox. Uranus is conjoining Trump's Midheaven one more time. The first was his unexpected win. Will this last hit bring more change? Uranus is the only planet not easy or even impossible to predict. It is the very nature of Uranus to be unpredictable.

The fourth house, the beginning of energy moving upward, rules anything related to the ground like agriculture, mining, public buildings, AND the opposing political party! Jupiter is here and that is good news. Our political system is under change and if the New York Times is to be believed, the Democrats are lost. Jupiter here gives them the ability to regroup and better reflect the needs of the country.

Mars is transiting through the fifth house ruling entertainment, risk taking (gambling), and small children, perhaps resulting in actions for or against entertainment and even abortion laws reducing the birth rate.

House six through eight are empty.

House nine is the law, judges, religion and clergy, international trade and shipping, tariffs. The moon is located here, very close to the Midheaven. The Moon always brings change! All of the matters of this house are making front page news! The Moon indicates matters of a public nature and the common people and being so close to the midheaven is important because it rules a country's public life, the goals of society, and the President. It reflects the ambitions, reputation and direction of the president. With the Moon so close to the Midheaven bringing change, we can already see how the reputation of the country has been hurt. But the Moon has not crossed over to the 10th house yet so expect

Give thanks for the clouds and the sky and breathe

more change.

Ahh, the tenth house. The president, the rich and famous! Empty! But the Moon is coming.....

The eleventh house is empty.

The twelfth and last house rules prisons and hospitals, charity and crime, reformers and criminals, spies and secrets! In the U.S. chart, Pluto and Mars are conjunct in this 12th house. (Review your American history!) And now Pluto is back where it was when the country was born!! What we are experiencing isn't so different as the colonists experienced when they were turning away from their homeland of Britain. What were they experiencing that forced them to go to war? And what do we do now with no new place to go on this planet? When Pluto crosses the Ascendent is 15 years, will there be an airship across the cosmos to another planet?
